

Professor Siladitya Bhattacharya MBBS, MD, FRCOG - Professor and Head of School of Medicine Medical Sciences and Nutrition at the University of Aberdeen.

Non-Executive Board Member

A graduate of Calcutta University, he trained in Obstetrics and Gynaecology in the United Kingdom, obtaining his MRCOG in 1991, MD in 1997 and FRCOG in 2006. He undertook his subspecialty training in Reproductive Medicine in Aberdeen and has been employed by the University of Aberdeen as Senior Lecturer and Professor in Obstetrics and Gynaecology and (Hon. Consultant, NHS Grampian) since 2000. He left Aberdeen to take up the role of Head of School of Medicine in the University of Cardiff in 2018 before returning in 2019 as Head of School of Medicine, Medical Sciences and Nutrition University of Aberdeen.

His clinical area of subspecialisation is infertility and assisted reproduction and his main research interests include reproductive epidemiology and health services research in reproductive health. He has led a number of multicentre clinical trials in the United Kingdom, chairs the International Reproductive Medicine Research Network (INREM) and is Editor in Chief of Human Reproduction Open.